

PARISH OF CUPAR.

The PARISH OF CUPAR is in the centre of the County. It contains the Royal Burgh and post town of its own name, and the villages of Springfield, Brighton, and Gladney. The latter however is so closely adjoining to Ceres, as properly to form along with it only one village. It is bounded by Moonzie, Kilmany, and Dairsie, on the north, by Dairsie and Kemback on the east, by Ceres on the south, and by Cults and Monimail on the west. It has a very irregular outline, and measures about five miles both in extreme length and breadth. The surface is finely undulated and well wooded. The river Eden flows through it from south west to north east, between green and fertile banks of varied beauty, about two thirds of the Parish being on the north side of the stream. The Lady Burn, or St Mary's Burn, flows through the northern suburbs of the town, and falls into the Eden at the Carthaugh. The soil to the north and east of the Burgh is a friable loam on a gravelly subsoil, and to the south and west more inclined to sand, Nearly the whole is in a state of cultivation, and capable of carrying almost every description of farm crop. The Parish is well supplied with good roads, and the Edinburgh, Perth, & Dundee Railway runs from west to east through its whole length, and has stations at Cupar and Springfield. In the country, there are quarries of good freestone, a brick and tile work, and a number of corn and flour

In the town, there is a spinning mill, a corn and flour mill, two tanworks, a currying work, three breweries, and a small foundry. The linen manufacture by hand loom weaving has long been actively carried on, but at present it is rather in a declining state. A power loom factory has however been erected in the, Lebanon suburb, which it is hoped will give a new impetus to the trade of the district.

The principal mansion houses are Tarvit, Kilmaron, and Wemysshall. About a mile to the west of the town is the ancient house of Carslogie, for many generations the family scat of the Clephanes, who in early feudal times exercised a great influence in the district.

Cupar comprises the two ancient Parishes of Cupar Fife and St Michaels of Tarvit, which were united in 1618. Cupar consisted of all to the north, and St Michaels of all to the south of the Eden. The Church and Churchyard belonging to the latter stood on what was called St Michael's Hill, or the Skaevia Brae. Long ago every vestige of the Church had disappeared, and the very hill on which it stood had been compelled to give way to the utilitarian demands of the present age, the whole having been driven off to form the railway embankment between the railway station and Cupar Muir. While the hill was in course of being levelled, the ancient graveyard was cut into, and an immense quantity of human bones exposed. Ever since the union of the two parishes, Cupar has been a collegiate charge, but, owing to the want of accommodation in the Parish Church, another place of worship was erected at the West Port in 1831, which is Called St Michaels Church, the two ministers officiating in the two Churches alternately.

The town of Cupar is situated nearly in the centre of both Parish and County, on the north bank of the Eden, on the turnpike road from Edinburgh to Dundee, and on the Dundee fork of the E. P. & D. Railway. It is ten miles west of St Andrews, twelve southwest of Tayport, and eighteen north north east of Kirkcaldy. It is a place of considerable antiquity. At an early period the Macduffs, Thaners of Fife, had a Castle on a height in the midst of the marshy grounds which then bordered the Eden and the Lady Burn. It continued the seat of the court of the Stewartry of Fife until the forfeiture of Albany, Earl of Fife, in the reign of James V, when that court was removed to Falkland. No trace of that Castle now remains, though the place where it stood is still called the Castle Hill. It is now the playground and site of the Madras Academy buildings.

The earliest charter of the Burgh was granted in 1363, by David II., conferring the privileges of trade upon the burgesses. These privileges were repeatedly confirmed and extended by Robert III. and subsequent sovereigns. At one period the Burgh held a considerable extent of land, from which a good revenue was derived, but it was sold and the money squandered by those in office, previous to the Passing of the Municipal Reform Act; and at present the annual revenue is about £140, which barely meets necessary expenditure. By the recent Municipal Act, the council consists of eighteen councillors, inclusive of a provost, three bailies, a treasurer, and a dean of guild. The Burgh unites with St Andrews and the five coast Burghs in returning a Member to Parliament.

The town of Cupar derives considerable importance from its being the County town, and numbering among its inhabitants the numerous practitioners who practise in the County court. Some of its importance is also owing to its being the centre of a large district of country, 'dotted by numerous villages and a multitude of fertile farms, the wants of whose inhabitants are to a great extent supplied by the shopkeepers and tradesmen of the Burgh; and this accounts for the number and respectability of the various places of business.

The town consists of four principal streets the Crossgate running north and south, the Bonnygate which runs east and west, St Catherine Street which is a continuation of the Bonnygate, and the Kirkgate, in which the Parish Church is situated, which runs in a south west direction from the centre of the Crossgate. There are also a number of small streets and lanes running off from the main streets, and large suburbs both to the north and south of the town, which are now included in the municipal and parliamentary boundaries. The best buildings are in St Catherine Street and the Crossgate, the county court buildings, most of the banking offices, and principal shops being in these streets.

Among the public institutions connected with the town may be mentioned, the national security savings' bank, a property investment company, a public reading room in the Town Hall, a subscription library, cricket, bowling, angling, and golf clubs. The latter however has never attained to much reputation, as, owing to the want of suitable ground, that fine game can only be pursued under great difficulties.

The public buildings are the various Churches, the County Court House with its elegant Hall, the 'Madras School buildings, the Guild Hall, the Town Hall, and the Masons' Lodge. A splendid new Corn Exchange is in course of erection at the foot of the Castle Hill, to be used as a Public Hall, and by farmers and others attending the weekly corn market, as a place for the transaction of business. This Mill prove a great architectural ornament to the place.

The Parish Church is a very plain structure, built in 1785. Its plainness is to some extent relieved by a handsome Turret or Spire, the only remaining portion of the ancient Gothic Church. It was built in 1415 up to the battlements, by the then Prior of St Andrews, and finished in its present condition in 1642, by the Rev. William Scott, minister of the Parish. It is often regretted that the new Church was not joined to the old Spire, as the intervention of the Session House or Vestry gives it a detached appearance. The other Churches are, St Michaels Church already referred to, a Free Church, two United Presbyterian Churches, Burnside and Boston a Free Communion Baptist Church, an Episcopalian Church, and two or three small Baptist congregations. There is a Chapel and a resident missionary, in connection with the Church of Scotland, at Springfield.

There is properly speaking lie Parochial School in the Parish ; the principal educational establishment is the Madras Academy, which has a staff of six male and one female, besides several assistant teachers. It is conducted on the Madras system Of the late Dr. Bell, who bequeathed to the institution the estate of Egmore in Galloway. the annual rent of which is nearly £700, which, along with the fees,, is devoted to the payment of the salaries of the teachers, and other necessary expenses connected with the institution. The whole is under the management of four trustees, viz ; the two Parish ministers, the provost, and the dean of guild. There are two well conducted Private Schools in the town, and two Institutions for young ladies, in which music and the modern languages are taught. There is a School at Springfield in connection with the Free Church.

There is a weekly corn market held on Tuesday, and a fair for cattle and horses on the first Tuesday of every month. There axe also two great hiring fairs, St James' and Martinmas, the former being held on the first Tuesday of August, and the latter on Martinmas term day. The August fair is by far the largest in the County, multitudes of country people being present on such occasions.

There are five Newspapers connected with the Town, viz, : The Fife Herald, the Fifeshire Journal, the News, the Dundee Advertiser, and the People's Journal. The publishing office for the two bitter is in Dundee, but they have a branch office in Cupar for the transaction of all business matters connected with the County.

The inhabitants in the country are generally employed in agricultural labours, or at the quarries and tile work at Cupar Muir, and in linen weaving. In the town many are employed as clerks and shopkeepers, a considerable number in the various handicrafts carried on in the district, and there are several hundreds of linen weavers, the greater part of whom are females.

POST OFFICE, 68 Crossgate, Cupar, Mr George Todd, Post from Dundee and the north arrive about 7 A. m., and 3,25 F. m., and are despatched at 8 A.m., and 4.40 P.m. Mails from Edinburgh and the west arrive about 8.30 A.M., and 5.5. P.M. and are despatched at 6.30 A.M. and 2.50 P.M. There is a mail from Edinburgh and London about 11. 45 A. m., but there is no delivery at that hour. Letters are delivered three times a day on week days, beginning about 7.20 and 9. 20 A. M., and 5.30. P. M. Walking postmen leave the Post Office about 9.20 A.M., for Springfield, Luthrie, Rathillet, Kilmany, Dairsie, Pitscottie, Ceres, &c., and returning in time for the afternoon's earliest despatch.
